1. Small printed leaflets, with the letters RUIC (meaning: Romani uniti-va impotvira communistilor, i.e. Rumanians, unite against the Communists) and an eagle at the top, were circulated among students of the BUCHAREST Institute of Commerce and Planned Economy on 10 May 1949, national holiday of the Kingdom of Rumania. The leaflets contained an appeal to resist and fight the Communists and were signed: "The Military Commander of the RUIC Resistance Organization."
2. Tiny type-written bills also stuck to the walls of the building of this institute, calling on the students to monitor the transmitter "Voice of the Mountains" on short wave 41 m Wednesdays and Fridays at 1 a.m. It was learned that a resistance movement operated the transmitter, periodically changing transmitting hours and wave length to avoid detection.
